Important Movement Af

Intelligence received by this evening train state that our scouts from four miles this side of Murfreesboro' report the enemy retreating from that vicinity. There is something in the wind, probably a contemplated flank movement.

Gen. Jos. E. Johnston and staff have gone to Tullahoma, which will hereafter be the permanent headquarters of the General on his assuming personal command of the army.

Rumor says that Rosencranz has sent large force to prevent Longstreet's advance through Kentucky.

From Murfreesboro.

CHATTANOOGA, March 20. The falling back of the enemy from Murireesboro is fully confirmed. It is supposed they have gone towards Nash-

Passengers by the evening's train report that three Yankee brigades went down the Cumberland river a few days since, supposed to reinforce the enemy in the neighborhood of Vicksburg.

Van Dorn is still on the North side of Duck river, the enemy having fallen back from Franklin. No movement of either of the armies has yet been made. Mrs. Gen. Bragg is dangerously ill at Winchester.

The bridge over the Holston, at , Zollicoffer, has been completed.

From Port Hudson.

PORT HUDSON, March 21. Reports of the sinking of the flag ship of-War Richmond from injuries received during the fight on the 15th inst. prevails. Nothing definite, however, has been ascer-

The mortar fleet still occupies their old position out of range below. Yesterday the enemy fired slowly at our transports with long range guns, but without effect.

A party of the enemy landed from their transports and burned the residence of Capt. J. Hein, formerly owned by Col. Sidney Robertson, on the opposite shore. Some activity has prevailed among the enemy's transports during the past five days, but no indications of another attempt to pass our batteries. Twenty deserters have arrived here during the past two days, and they are continually coming in. They confirm previous reports of the demoralization of Banks' army.

Our batteries sustained no injury during the recent engagement and they are, theretore, ready at all times to give the enemy a warm reception.

From the United States. RICHMOND, March 20. Advices from Fredericksburg state that

Northern dates of the 18th inst. have been received. Rumors are rite that Vicksburg has been evacuated and it is supposed the greater part of the rebels would go to Chattanooga to overwhelm Rosoncrantz. The New York -Times says that a combined attack on Vicksburg may be looked for daily, for it will be impossible for Grant to leave his men and vessels of the Yazoo Expediition where they now are. It was probably intended all the movements were to be simultaneous.

The war news is generally unimportant. The Yankees are clamorous for success over our cavalry in Tennessee.

The price of gold fell off 2ths of a cent in the New York market, on the 16th inst.

Government credits were firm. The privateer Florida coaled at Barba does on the 24th ult., leaving on the 25th, and Com. Wilkes knew of her whereabouts before leaving St. Thomas. M. Gaillardet writes from Paris under date of 27th ult., that an insurrection has broken out in Hungary, corresponding with that in Poland. He mentions a rumor that Napoleon will recall his French army from Mexico and treat with Jaurez upon the report made by Gen. Forey that the popu larity of the Mexican President insures his re-election by universal suffrage. 'Tis added, that the French Emperor wishes to avoid a conflict with the Northern States though the aid they offer the Mexicans unpleasant relations between Seward and Mercier and the refusal of the Washington Cabinet to accept the last proposition of France, may bring about a collision,

From Fort Pemberton.

Monte, March 21.

The Advertiser & Register has the following semi-official dispatch, dated FORT PERSERTON, March 20.

Gen. Loring has whipped the enemy back from this point. They are now in full retreat for the Yazoo Pass.

A special dispatch to the Appeal, dated anola, 19th inst., says:

The Federals engaged in a raid upo

Hernando have retreated.

It is reported they have abandoned the Mamphis & Charleston Railroad. The old freep are being replaced by new ones.

The Mebile & Ohio Road has been abandoned from Jackson, Tenn.. to Columbus, ter, 60 miles North East of here, and moved towards Holly Springs.

The Appeal learns that no new move ments have taken place at Port Hudson. Banks has fallen back to his fortified camps and manifests no disposition to advance. Deserters continue to come in and all report disaffection in their camps.

The fleet continue out of sight. The two vessels above have been slowly steaming up the river. They landed a party who cut down a few poles of the telegraph line and carried off the wire below Natchez, but the damage was quickly repaired by by our Superintendant.

CHARLESTON, March 22. The enemy has been shelling the wreck of the Georgiana which still lies off Long Island beach. Otherwise all quiet.

Humphrey Marshall. Gen, Humphrey Marshall was serenad-

ed by a brass band, accompanied by a crowd of citizens, on Wednesday last, in front of the Lamar House, Knoxville. At the repeated calls of the crowd; says the Register, Col. Crozier introduced General Marshall, who responded in a few remarks to the compliments paid him. He said he was satisfied that Knoxville is a safe locality, a very safe place, from the appearance and size of the crowd before him .-While it is well enough to be secure, it would be better if most of you would go out about Tullahoma, where there is likely to be something to do. I have been in the fastnesses of your mountains so long they feel like home to me. I have tried to perform my duty the best I could, but with all the watchfulness I could bestow, the enemy sometimes burn bridges right under my nose. But all will be well ye, if we do our duty,. I have got out of the habit of speech-making, and you must excuse me. Good night. The hints and the hits of the short speech were received with loud cheering. The Register facetiously remarks: It would be wrong to wish that his shadow may never grow less, (Humphrey weighs 450 pounds,) but we do wish him a long and prosperous Politeness does much in business An impudent clerk can do more injury in a store than the neglect of the proprietor to advertise his goods,

The True Pedigree and Early History of Abraham Lincoln.

Editors of the Atlanta Intelligencer.]

Some time ago an article appeared in your paper, copied from one of your exchanges, purporting to give the pedigree and early history of Abraham Lincoln, the President of the United States. As the article in question abounded in errors, which the writer of this article, by personal acquaintance, with the subject, is enabled in order to carry the war to an honorable to correct; and as the subject itself is one of general interest, he feels it to be his duty thing, they will stop the war before they to lay before the public a true statement of will do it." Ah! Don't you remember the facts.

The man known as Abraham Lincoln, who now sits in the seat once occupied respectively by Washington, Madison, Jefterson, and Jackson, was born in the county of Hardin, now the county of Larue, in the State of Kentucky, and ahout forty miles from where the writer of this article lives when at home. The mother was a single woman of very low social position, by the name of Hannah Hanks. She was generally reputed to have from one-eighth to one sixteenth of negro blood in her veins. and always associated with negroes on terms of equality. According to the statement of Hannah Hanks, her illegitmate child was the son of Abraham Inlow, (who was still alive and in Kentucky in September in 1861.) I have, myself, heard her make this statement. Moreover, Inlow always claimed the child as his own. Here, then, is the testimony of the two witnesses most conversant with the facts, both establishing beyond cavil that Inlow is Lincoln's father.

I will here give you a few facts in regard to Inlow. He was originally from North | be all pourd out rather than this, "Stop Carolina, but emigrated to Kentucky when the war" and become the slaves, the subvery young. He is quite tall, being about six feet three inches in height. He goes and relentless toes? No, never! "Stop barefoot in the summer, and I have never seen him with a coat on but once. His pants are held up by one suspender only, this sort of talk savors rather strongly of worn over the left shoulder. His nose is "aid and comfort to the enemy." "Stop disfigured by having a piece about the size the war" indeed! and for what? That of a dime bit out of it in a fight.

When little Abe was four years and six revil upon every fair thing and sacred assomonths old his mother intermarried with a man by the name of Lincoln, and the boy was afterwards called by his step father's name. One night old Lincoln coming home and finding Inlow at his house, felt those pangs which once disturbed the noble Othello and caused him to immolate the spotless Desdemona. He felt those sad pangs, but he did not go off into soliloquies nor talk tragedy, but like a backwoodsman of the coarser mould he pitched into Inlow, and they had a regu'ar "set to." Lincoln bit off a portion of Inlow's nose, and the latter deprived Lincoln of one joint of his thumb. After this affair old Lincoln became extremely cruel to Abe, and his mother found it necessary to send him to live with a lady who lived in the neighborhood. There he remained until he was about thirteen years of rge. By this time he was able to work on the farm, and old Lincoln relented towards him and permitted him to return and live with him. The lady who gave Abe a home at this time was Mrs McBriyde, who afterwards moved to Nashville, Tennessee, and who was still living on the 15th February, 1862, at which time the writer of this article saw her and conversed with her. She can substantiate the statements here made. Dur ing Abe's residence at Mrs. McBriyde's he was sent to an ordinary old field school for three years, and then obtained the rudiments of a rough education. After his return home he went no more to school. Neither old Lincoln nor his wite (Abe's mother) could read and could not see the use of an education. Abe was now put to hard work, and was even compelled to work on Sundays. This he could not stand, so he ran away from Lincoln and went as a hand on an Ohio flat boat. From this position he was promoted to the position of a deck hand on a steamboat. Afterwards he quit the river, went into Illinois. near Springfield, and become clerk of a saw mill. He soon afterwards studied law and commenced practicing before magistrates' courts. With his subsequent history the public are acquainted, and I do not propose to speak of it, my object being to supply information concerning that por-

There are two prominent facts in this brief recital to which I would call attention. One of these is the Atrican decent and low associations of Abe Lincoln's mother. Here it was that he must have obtained his notions of negro equality. Having imbibed it in his mother's milk, can we expect him ever to rise superior to or the leopard his spots?"

tion of his life which seemed to be least

The other circumstance to which I have alluded, and which doubtless had a potent influence in the formation of Abe's character, was the cruel treatment which he received from his step-father. This had the effect of hardening a nature by no means soft, and rendering him a fit tool for carrying out the hellish purposes of the have been, or may hereafter be, promoted Abolition party. Let no man deceive himself with hopes based on any supposed teeling of humanity in Lincoln's nature. ed the same commutation as is provided The bastard son of Hannah Hanks-the in the previous paragraph, or, when they victim of a stepfather's cruelty has a grudge | go on leave, the transportation in kind at against the human family. His carly train- their option. ing makes it imposible for him to feel the "dint of pity," and he will repay upon society, with interest; the cruelty which in early life he experienced.

Aye, even if we have to prey upon the very vermin which inhabit the barns and cribs and meat houses of our most worthy and provident, but ill advised farmers and traders, for about them we are assured the finest crops of rats and mice are being fatted, and that too, upon the provisions withheld from the people, because for sooth, the market prices for the same, will not remunerate just now !!-"Stop the war"-give up! no, no! #### To the Ladies of the Charlotte Sewing Society. MRS. PRESIDENT :

Permit me in the name of the brave men under my command, to thank you, and through you, the Ladies of the Society over which you so worthily preside, for the opportune present of drawers and shirts sent by Lieutenant Stitt, The present would have been more promptly acknowledged, but for the fact that we have been constantly on the move since the reception. To praise the patriotism and devotion of the Ladies of my county, on this occasion, would be as useless as to attempt to add lustre to the lilly, or brilliancy to the varigated hues of the rainbow. We are just from an attack on the enemy near Newbern, and could the Ladies have seen the men on that cold Saturday morning, ere the sun had made his appearance, shivering in the trenches, barefooted and nearly naked, I know their generous hearts would have been touched at their condition, and another instance of self sacrifice would be added to the catalogue, to procure them shoes and pants-articles they stand in so much need of. You have my most profound gratitude for your kind remembrance, and the assurance that your gift came into appreciative hands. Wherever duty calls we will cheerfully go, with our hearts strengthened and arms nerved to strike home in defence of those who have proved so true, so generous, so attenuve to the soldiers necessities, and so lively in all that constitute womans greatest and happiest charms.

I am madam, your ob't serv't. R. P. WARING. Capt. Co. B, 43d Regt., N. C. T. Camp near Kinston, March 18, '63,

The Gold Panic.

We have to day to perform the highest uties of the journalist. It is to combat langerous errors, illusions and panics in he public mind-to keep cool and hold on to reason as a guide, while excitement and apprehension are doing their fearful work out of doors, and scattering the senses of those who ought to be sensible men, like so many timid hares. We have spoken elsewhere of the food panic as of class with the powder panic, the arms panic, and the salt panic of former epochs of the war. The gold panic is one of the last hallucinations of the times. The currency question is vital to us; it is our weak point, because it is sensitive as an exposed nerve, and most inviting to the operations of speculators at home, and enew mies at home and abroad. Timid men these operators. It becomes every man of sense and motive, who loves the cause and his country, to fight the evil manfully,

It is telegraphed from Richmond, "Advance in gold! Exodus of foreigners!-Gold has risen in Richmond to 400, and Bank notes to 60 premium." The exodus of foreigners, as a cause of the rise, is a table. It might temporarily affect that market, but there is no exodus of foreigners here to account for the flutter on St. Francis and St. Michael streets.

Can any man perceive any rational cause in the present condition of our military atfairs, why Confederate currency should suddenly jump down 160? If Richmond or Charleston had been taken, or Vicks burg reduced, the reason would be clear enough. But it comes when there is no defeat or series of defeats of our arms to dampen the hopes of ultimate triumph, and when every thing looks more tavorable for us than at any period of the war. No man with a magnifying glass can discover a single reason why Confederate note today is not worth just as much as it was yesterday. Yet, upon a breath of a report, a vapor of suspicion of evil, lots of people are, while we write, running to the broker's offices, eager to exchange their paper for gold at any price. They verify the maxim. A fool and his money are soon parted.' To-morrow, the wind may sit in a different quarter. The wireworkers, having succeeded in bagging a sufficient lot of dupes, may find it convenient to let up the snare, and a good piece of news may come along to justify an advance in Confederate paper. Then these dupes who bought at 400 will begin to think they had been too easily scared, and come back to sell again at 300. One thing is worthy of remark. and we commend it to the timid patriot who is the possessor of Confederate money. It is, that it takes two to make a bargain, and when he can sell his paper, there must needs be a buyer. Now, it is as good in his hands as in those of the buyer, and the buyer is the smartest and sharpest hand in the bargain.

There are no more dangerous enemies to our cause than these timid possessors of Confederate money. Most of them have made it out of the war and out of the derangements in prices and currency occasioned by the war. They are now using their gains to weaken the general cause to strike a blow at public credit and public confidence. The alarm they create by the misuse of their illgotten wealth is more dangerous to the cause than the fury of our enemies and their countless armies .-It is in their power to conquer us when Lincoln cannot do it, with all his vast Dietatorial powers. And some times we think we see the hands of our own wily and bitter foes in their attacks upon our currency. It would be a scheme worthy of the cunning brain of the Machiavellian Seward. He and his brother Yankees are money-understanding people. They know what an element of evil a disorganized currency is-worse than a disorganized army. They know both by a bitter experience. Having tailed to disorganize our noble armies, (and they never have been in such splendid fighting condition since the war began) may they not be trying I will be settled by the 21d Auditor, those our currency? There is no cause for this alarm. It ss of the very essence of a panic. Our prospects were never brighter, our success is certain, (for ite only real enemies are the engrossers and the panic makers), and with success the inexhaustible resources of the richest country in productions on the habitable clobe, are ample to pay all the debts of the war. THE CHARLESTON MERCURY

Superintendent.

A POLITICAL, COMMERCIAL, AND LI TERARY REWSPAPER

PUBLISHED DAILY AND TRI-WREKLY

THE MERGURY gives daily reports of the Market and Marine Intelligence in Charleston, and of Charleston commerce in the leading seaports of the world. The Weekly Prices Current is made up with much care, and from the most reliable sources. Its connection with the "Associated Press" insures the latest intelligence by Telegraph and the earliest news by Steamers from Europe. It has an able and accomplished Correspondent Il London (a gentleman connected with the editorial staff of the London Times,) and regular Correspondents in New York, Washington, with the editorial staff of the London Times,) and regular Correspondents in New York, Washington, Rey West and Havana. The monthly New York Fashion Letters and weekly letters on Lafe in Washington are additional attractions in favor of its lady readers. Its literary notices, from the pen of a gentleman who occupies perhaps the highest position among the literary men of the South, are discriminating and comprehensive.—Attention is paid to all matters of general concern, especially those in reference to the Planting and Agricultural interest, and to the current news of the day. Great care is taken that nothing shall from the family circle.

The political creed of the Menduay consists in the principles of the Democratic Party, as laid down in the Virginia and Kentucky Resolutions of 1798 and 1799—the Sovereignty of the States; a strict construction of the Pederal Constitution by the General Government, the agent of the States; rece Trade, and an economical Administration of the Government. Its policy is the Union of the Southern States in maintaining their rights.
